

3:47:22 – Rose Bellanca – Yeah. One of the things when we talk about the millage – Madam Chair – not – I don't – I'm not giving my opinion – but one of the things that we have to think about is right now, the rhetoric about free college.

3:47:40 Dianna McKnight-Morton - Mmm hmm.

3:47:40 Rose Bellanca - And how we are going to explain that to our - um - our voters about what does that mean. That is something that is going to be kind of challenging this time.

3:47:55 Richard Landau - It is confusing because if the Governor doesn't make good on that particular promise, then the rest of us are left holding the bag.

3:48:02 Rose Bellanca - Well and I don't know what our voters will say if they - they may think – there isn't any plan – there isn't a plan

3:48:10 Richard Landau - No.

3:48:10 Rose Bellanca - So if they hear "free college" of course they're going to - I'm afraid they might ask – what am I paying for?

3:48:17 David DeVarti - That's why we should be saying, "We're holding the line on our tuition and fees."

3:48:21 Rose Bellanca - Right. We will say that.
