Kim Hurns: Our second partnership priority is to develop a University Center on campus. And like many of our goals we've talked about tonight, it's aligned directly with our efforts toward retention and our transfer work. Um, so our goal is to build a stronger and physical relationship with universities to streamline our transfer options for our students in specific programs and specific schools. And one of the things that we really want to focus on is – um – we're in a rich community with higher education options, but we want to make sure that we're providing all options to our students, as they may have different needs, different programs that they want to pursue and that we can provide them with the advising and a pathway that's clear and communicated to them in a valuable way.

59:46 Christina Fleming – Go ahead.

59:49 Dianna McKnight-Morton: Are you at liberty to divulge who these university people are?

59:55 Rose Bellanca: I don't think we have them yet. This is a vision.

1:00:02 DMM: Well, I'm asking because, um, I can see one university, but I don't see the other.
